“Retreat, Hell! We Just Got Here” — These are the words Marine Capt. Lloyd Williams fired back after a French officer told him to have his company retreat at Belleau Wood. During June 1918, U.S. Marines fought an epic battle with German forces in a French forest. The battle cost the Marines 1,000 killed and another 4,000 wounded, but the German forces were decimated. The French Army was stunned by the marine victory and issued an order renaming Belleau Wood “Bois de la Brigade de Marine.” Dr. Roger McGrath, historian and contributor to the History Channel, discusses this famous WWI battle.
